Women’s role in Yemen’s peace and transition process (2011–2015)

The Gulf Cooperation Council Initiative was a political transition process launched in the wake of large-scale protests in Yemen. Beginning with an elite deal, a Government of National Unity was formed, followed by new presidential elections, then a National Dialogue and a constitution-drafting process. An escalation in violence in 2015, however, effectively brought the process to an end.
